Gold Medal Butter Wrappers Good for Votes

We have a very important announcement to make today in that we have arranged to redeem the wrappers on GOLD MEDAL BUT-TER at one hundred votes for each wrapper. The amount of butter consumed in the average home should at once indicate to our vot-ers that no matter where the gro-cery purchase is made, the butter purchase should be GOLD MEDAL. This unsurpassed table necessity now on sale at many of your

Get your forces going after the Butter Wrapper at once for it will play a large part toward the successful end you aspire to. Present to Deacon's Store for redemption. This popular butter has doubled in sales in Norwich due to the contest, and Putnam will not prove an exception, for once Gold Medal is in your home it will always be the butter desired.

After considerable work the thousands of votes cast for the first week have assumed definite totals and are placed to the credit totals and are placed to the credit of the candidates now aspirants for the beautiful Library. The long list represents every sentiment in the community from the urchin on the street to the banker, from the layman to the clergyman, from the servant to the society matron, in fact, Putnam and Danielson are fast developing into one great body of individuals aspiring to the same end with a single purpose in view.

The first boom of the cannon sends the B. P. O. Elks to the forefront, the position always coveted by every contestant. This worthy organization's friends were alert from the very first moment passing the news from ear to ear that they were out to win and that these friends have given ready response is self-evident.

The big stride made by the workers of St. Mary's School and Church bodes ill for anyone lagging in the good work and is convincing testimony that many pupils and members are after the Library in earnest. The High School is deserving of special mention of their plucky beginning and if the pupils and friends in total got behind those few who have taken the initiative, this worthy competitor may be counted a dangerous rival.

Now that the long list of candidates is set forth in printers' type the time for speedy and concerted action is here. This is an affair which if carried to a successful issue, will require the exercise of united purpose. You cannot simply depend upon each individual to per form his part unless that individ-ual has been approached personally or by letter, indicating the desire from executive heads for this support. Leadership is essential and this leadership must be augmented by tributary forces. The writer is well aware this suggestion will be put into effect but delay along this line may result in defeat in the end.

Coroner Bill Not Ready to Express Verdict in Motorcycle Fatality Case.

Coroner A. G. Bill's finding in the death of Vasiles T. Tsakonas fatally injured in the motorcycle accident on the West Side Monday morning is not likely to be given out this week, as his stenographer's notes had not been ompletely transcribed Thursday, Coroner Eill will review these very care-fully before making his finding, which will be of special interest owing to the will be of special interest owing to the circumstances surrounding the case. Much stress has been laid in public comment on the claim of the promotors of the mortorcycle races that they were given permission by the selectmen of Brooklyn to run off the events, though it so happened that A. J. Kenehan, the rider who figured in the accident that cost the lofe of the Tsakonas boy, was not racing at the time of the occurrence. The permission to hold the races that it is claimed was granted by the selectmen of Brooklyn, in which town the accident occurred, in conjunction with similar permission from selectmen of other towns in the territory through which the races were to be run has been the races were to be run has been taken by many to fix responsibility and liability upon the town of Brooklyn through the alleged act of its agents the selectmen.

This claim was ridiculed by a number of attorneys who were asked to express an opinion on the point, they claiming that even if the selectmen did grant permission for the races in a public highway they were exceeding their authority as agents of the town; that as one attorneys put it them. that, as one attorney put it, the se-lectmen of any town have no more right to authorize mortocycle races in says the town of Brooklyn is not lia-ble for any damages that may be sought.

On the other hand, another attorney points out that even through the selectmen of Brooklyn did grant per-mission for the races, this fact did not set aside the laws of the state governing the operation of motor vehicles in public highways; that all of the laws relative to fast and reckless driving, the exercise of care and due caution were just as much in force on the stretch of highway where the speed events were to be run off as at any other time and that an accident occuring thereon at racing time would be considered solely on its merits the same as in the case of a similar accident occurring at any other time.

Viewed apart from the race aspect surrounding the case, through Kenahan by the time was not riding in any race event, the death of the Tsakonas boy, one attorney points out, may be regarded as would be another similar accident.

Another interesting point raised in the discussion is that Kenehan certainly would not have been where he was when the accident occurred unless races arranged to be held there had attracted him from Providence and that he felt, under the circumstances has seen as a seen and within the stances, he was safe and within the law in riding rapidly along the race course mapped out, his speed, about which there was a wide divergence of opinion at the inquest, being under the conditions a matter of secondary consideration.

All who have considered the case are not inclined to severely criticish such officials of the town of Brooklyn as may have granted the alleged per-mission to hold the races. Arrange-ments for other like races in a number of Windham County towns have been of Windham County towns have been made before. Fortunately on such occasions no accidents occurred. No objections were made to the granting of the so-called permissions, nor was any made on this occasion following the time of the announcement of the races. There was not a word of protest.
